Project: Home Bargains Extension
Client: Classic Builders
Tonnage: 80 tonnes
Location: Bodmin, Cornwall

Snashall Steel were assigned the responsibilities to draw, fabricate and erect the Home Bargains extension in Bodmin, Cornwall. The project was familiar to us as an initial phase was also produced by Snashall Steel for BAM with a total project value of £2.2m.

The extension work involved a hipped roof over the new retail unit with a lean-to roof that backs on to the existing phase to create a seamless transition. Close collaboration with both architectural and engineering consultants were required to obtain continuation from existing to new building. A large number of connections were required between our new frame and the existing with built in tolerance to allow for the various site conditions. Snashall Steel not only were required to provide the main extension, but also, an independent storage unit and a new signage totum steel frame.
